Before studying to become a Front-End web developer, I worked, and still do, as an ESL (English as a Second Language) teacher in Mexico City. I became interested in web development as a means of providing interactive online activities to my learners. I had dabbled in programming in my late twenties but began to take it in earnest in the second half of 2017. My goal as a developer is to work towards the development of online education systems.

EDUCATION

Grad	Graduate North Thurston High School	June 1987
Cert	Cambridge University Language Assessment ICELT Advisor: Ismael Sombra	October 2017
TH	Treehouse Front End Web Development Certificate earned	Jan 2018

TEACHING EXPERIENCE

I have been teaching English to learners in Mexico City since 2007. I started with a certificate of teaching from Bridge TEFL in Colorado and after gaining a few years of experience, continued my study in the field by taking online courses. In 2017, I decided to pursue a certificate from Cambridge University's Language Assessment ICELT program. Once I had obtained my certificate, I began to look for ways to engage my learners in this new digital age. I started studying Front-End Web Development with this goal in mind.
